

THANK YOU TO OUR NEWSLETTER SPONSOR

Sears block upzone hits Planning Commission – will the City ask enough of IHC?

Meanwhile, a citizens' coalition has reached out to Intermountain leadership with guiding principles that they hope will result in a true "urban hospital," which Intermountain has stated they intend to build.

Big changes — and a big chance at rebounding — are coming to SLC's western gateway

(Rocky Mountain Power) An October 2020 conceptual rendering of Rocky Mountain Power's Power District Campus, envisioned on more than 100 acres around its current headquarters along North Temple Boulevard in Salt Lake City, adjacent to the Jordan River.

Ogden Union Station project: 'A 200year opportunity'

The City of Ogden is hosting a public meeting focused on the Make Ogden plan, which envisions the overhaul of Union Station, among other things, on Wednesday, March 22, 2023.

(This photo is from an earlier Feb. 22, 2023, meeting focused on the Make Ogden plan at Union Station.)

C. W. Urban breaks ground on opportunity zone site for the development of the YARD in Salt Lake City

C.W. Urban, an innovative Utah home builder, has broken ground on an 8.57-acre Opportunity Zone site in Salt Lake City for the development of the YARD, a 157-unit single-family build-to-rent townhome community.

Quarry expansion at Point of the Mountain gets 'tentative approval' despite objections from Draper officials

(Trent Nelson | Tribune file photo) Geneva Rock's operation at Point of the Mountain, Feb. 27, 2020.

Draper cries foul after Geneva Rock looks to add 77 acres within city limits to its massive mining footprint.

Do you have any great pictures from SYMPOSIUM?

Please share with us: naiop@naioputah.org

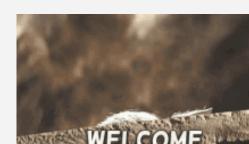

WELCOME NEW MEMBERS!

Steve Strong, Hillcrest Bank
Lauren Reynolds, HVS

Grant Lippard, Prospera

Have a Newsletter idea?

EMAIL Jade

f 💟 💿 in

Click here to unsubscribe.